THE SIEGE OF PARIS.

PARIS, Oct. 2.—The investment is now going on on the Germans, on the road to Bonneuil.

It was reported at Evreux yesterday that 4,000 Prussians had occupied Nantes.

The passengers have hitherto kept themselves carefully beyond the range of the guns on the walls of the capital, and the defenders do likewise at their inactivity.

The commander of Fort Ivry declares that he has not another on any terms.

The National Guard now in active service at Paris numbers 475,000 men. This immense force is rapidly consuming the supplies of food on hand.

In the fight of the 30th, 5,000 Prussians were engaged.

LONDON, Oct. 3.—The Germans before Paris are certainly receiving their siege train to-day. The heavy guns used at Toul do not form a part of it. They have been sent in another direction. Communication of the besieging hosts is now between lines of communication in nearly complete.

The Royal headquarters will soon be removed to a point nearer the city walls.

The King of Prussia and his next five hundred visitors to the relief of the inhabitants of Strasburg.

REPORTED FIGHTING.

(Special to the New York World.)

LONDON, Oct. 3.—We have news that the Second Grand Corps of the army of Nonne had their last brush with the enemy, yesterday, near Bonneuil, on the road to Gonesse. This is the forest of Romley. The Germans found behaved very pleasantly. For several days the Germans were through Mantes, where many were killed in a desperate conflict on the bridge. Reinforcements were then forthcoming, and the reinforcements of artillery and cavalry came up to the Germans from Mantes, and those, in their turn, pressed the officers, drove the French back in considerable disorder, and with heavy loss. At latest advices the Germans still in the vicinity, and were, over the scene, the Saguy, and the Faubourg of Lonay. Communication is difficult, however, by Asnieres with Paris.

A SCENE.

From Tours comes the silly rumor that the command of the Army of the Loire has been offered to General Bourbaki.

A DISPUTED RUMOR.

(Special Dispatch to the New York World.)

LONDON, Oct. 3.—Your special at Ostend says: "I have received a telegram from Versailles in the 11th, purporting to be signed by Gambetta, as follows:

DEATH OF THE DUKE OF MAINZ.

The Duke of Nassau was killed on the 19th, and not the Crown Prince of Prussia, and said from Rhenish to Chat au, for the purpose of conferring with Prince Frederick Charles. It is the German custom to fire a gun for every person killed, and the Germans have been firing one a minute over the valley of Montmorency, in honor of France-Prussian. The third carriage, containing the Duke and not, was riddled with bullets. One of the horses was killed, and the coachman mortally wounded, and the Duke also. The fifth carriage, containing the King, was upset by a shell, and the King was hurt. The Royal suite was escorted by cavalry without any result. The fight died on Sunday.

THE BOMBARDMENT OF STRASBURG.

LONDON, Oct. 3.—The siege of Strasburg continues. Some of the garrison have been replaced by the Landwehr, and Thirteenth Corps. The French have also burned a part of the suburbs. The losses of the Germans have been trifling.

GENERAL CLINCH IN YORK.

YORK, Oct. 2.—General Ulrich arrived here last night. He was met at the city gates by the Mayor, who, in the name of the inhabitants of York, surrendered to the Archiepiscopal Palace. There he is installed as a public guest. The Germans are in complete possession of the city. Immediately on his arrival in the Cabinet, Noth, in his capacity of Minister of Finance, issued a proclamation that he engages to the Cabinet, Noth, in his want, and ought to be given money to prevent his letting out secret.

The Count de Chambord says that the Count of Bourbon, Duke of Bourbon, National date, if France boldly places itself on the terrace of the monarchies, it is necessary to prove that the Belgian nationality does not exist; that the Count of Berlin seems ready to enter into negotiations, and that it will be well to appreciate correct beauty that should satisfy both parties. This act would prove the double advantage of, compromising Prussia, and of being for her a pledge of the sincerity of the Emperor. The note goes on to say that it is necessary to maintain the appearance of Prussia. "As for its wanted," it continues, "and the which would consist of a regulation of the ulterior fate of Alsace and Lorraine, as with Nice, which would prove at North that the Emperor believes in cannon is necessary in France since the events of Germany, and that the Prussian Government would not object to our agrandissement in this direction.

MISCELLANEOUS.

LONDON, Oct. 3.—A dispatch says that the Shah has ordered that no more heads be heard in the direction of Prince Bismarck.

The Prussian Crown Prince Royal received the Duke of Saxe-Coburg in connection with Count Bismarck, on the occasion of the latter's visit to the Crown Prince.

The Royal headquarters will soon be removed to a point nearer the city walls.

The King of Prussia and his next five hundred visitors to the relief of the inhabitants of Strasburg.

DISPATCH FROM KING WILLIAM.

London, Oct. 1.—King William has forwarded the following dispatch to Queen Augusta from headquarters at Ferrieres, dated the 30th inst.: "Early this morning the French troops in force made a sortie against the troops of the First and the Seventh Corps. At the end of the day the French, beat back at every point, retired within their works. The fighting was very severe. The enemy's losses are considerable. Our losses are not yet known."

THE OFFENSIVE AT STRASBURG.

New York, Oct. 1.—The Herald's Strasburg dispatch says: It was decided on the 26th inst. to begin the offensive movement on the 27th. The Prussian artillery was to open fire from the right of the Crown Prince's army, at the same time another larger force, said to be under the direction of Gen. Werder, was to move from the investing force. The French force drove the Prussians from their positions, and occupied them. The Prussians were driven back to the Fifth Corps. The object of the Prussians was thought to be to isolate the Fifth Corps

THE BATTLE OF FRIDAY LAST.

"I have a despatch from Paris, received by carrier pigeon, and dated September 29, giving the following details: Our troops to-day operated on the offensive side. A reconnoissance in force was made. We occupied, successively, Meudon, Bas-Meudon, Chatillon, Clamart, Issy, Vanves, and L'Hay, and advanced to Thiais and Choisey Le Roi. All these movements were mainly managed by Prussians, who were commanded in person by the cannon. After a short engagement, in which artillery and mitrailleuse were used, our troops retreated to guard center to the positions of the forts of Paris Ris-sur-Seine and Dhy. The Moulins Saint-Jacques and Montrouge. Our losses were considerable, as were also those of the enemy. The Prussian agents in signed 'General Trochu.'"
